

THE BREWING PROCESS

1. THE MILL: The malt kernels are cracked in the roller mill to expose the starchy endosperm while preserving the husks.

2. GRIST CASE: The Grist Case is a hopper mounted on load cells used to precisely weigh the required malt.

3. MASH TUN: Cracked malt and water are mixed at a specific ratio and temperature. This mashing process uses natural enzymes to convert malt starch to fermentable sugars.

4. BREW KETTLE: The sugar created in the mash tun is drawn off to the Brew Kettle in a liquid form called wort. It is in the Brew Kettle that hops are introduced for bitterness and flavor.

5. PLATE & FRAME HEAT EXCHANGER: The sweet, hopped wort is cooled from boiling to fermentation temp generating hot water for subsequent use.

6. FERMENTOR: Yeast is added to the cooled wort in the Fermentor. The yeast consumes the sugars in the sweet wort to produce alcohol and CO₂.

7. CONDITIONING TANK: After fermentation is complete, the beer is transferred to a conditioning tank. Aging allows for by-products of fermentation to mellow and beer clarification to naturally occur.

8. SERVING TANK: The finished beer is moved to 15 bbl serving tanks, carbonated, and dispensed directly.

9. YOUR GLASS: The most important vessel in the brewing process. It is here that the culmination of all our efforts can be tasted and judged.

Cheers!

Drew Weber*

Medium-bodied and slightly sweet, it finishes with a subtle hop note that balances beautifully. To celebrate our roots, we've brought back Batch #1.
